Women Rise Up! In defiance of history, polls, and pundits, the story of women's resilience rewrites the narrative. The 2022 elections, predicted to be a disaster for Democrats, instead showcased the strength of a united front of women. In 2023, abortion rights won big again, in ballot initiatives and elections all across the country.

When we bet on women, everyone wins.

Contrary to pundit predictions, the fall of Roe v. Wade did not dampen our momentum. It instead galvanized it, proving that our fight extends beyond any single court decision. Women's March has always recognized what is now evident: the pivotal factor in these battles is not just the fall of Roe; it is the collective power of women.

Women's lives encompass more than Roe. Our vision of reproductive freedom transcends it. Women, especially those under 50, along with voters under 30, perceived the 2022 midterms and 2023 elections as crucial turning points for our nation. We responded by turning out in unprecedented numbers, delivering a clear verdict against the divisive rhetoric of MAGA extremism.

Our campaign extends to every state, every legislator, challenging politicians at all levels: if you threaten our families, our freedoms, or our future, we will unseat you.

We will not stop until we win.

Drawing inspiration from recent ballot measures, we have witnessed a powerful truth: when abortion rights are on the ballot, we win. These victories illuminate a fundamental reality: a Supermajority of Americans supports reproductive freedom.

On January 21, 2024, we unite to send an unequivocal message:

Our resolve is unyielding. Our movement is not just about Roe; it is about safeguarding the rights and freedoms for all, now and for future generations. We are the majority, and our voices will be heard.

On January 21, 2024, we're marching in all 50 states with priority on the nine states where abortion rights will be directly on the ballot. This march is a strategic intervention to galvanize voters for the 2024 elections. We're showing up to secure abortion access and counter far-right extremism.

Join us in the state-by-state battle to defend our rights shape our future.
